SPRING JAMS HIGHWAYS

Increase in Traffic Brings 10 Arrests; Only 2 Injured in Richland County.

A traffic fatality in Ashland county and the injury of seven persons in Millersburg which revived a traffic light controversy in the Holmes county seat, were the two most serious accidents in the Richland county area during a week-end of balmy weather in which hundreds of motorists took to the highways.

Only two persons were injured in Richland county, while traffic accidents in various sections of the state claimed the lives of nine persons, according to dispatches to The News-Journal today.

Patrol Active.

Crowded highways caused state highway patrolmen and city police to conduct a more intensive check of dangerous driving. Highway patrol headquarters and police reported a total of 10 arrests.

Dead in the only traffic fatality in this area was Harry Richards, 27, of 605 Cottage street, Ashland, who died at Good Samaritan hospital in Ashland early Sunday. He suffered a skull fracture when struck by an automobile three miles north of Ashland while walking along U. S. route 42.

Driver Exonerated.

Ashland authorities exonerated Karl Woertman, 22, of Ashland, driver of the car. Deputy Sheriff M. F. Rickenbrod said Richards had left a roadhouse and walked toward Ashland on the wrong side of the road for pedestrian traffic.

Richards' home was in Cleveland but he was employed at the Simmons Manufacturing company in Ashland.

At Millersburg collision of a passenger bus and a small coupe sent the seven injured to Pomerene hospital severely bruised and lacerated.

The collision occurred at the intersection of South Washington and Clay streets where a traffic light, installed six months ago by orders of city council, was removed only last Monday. The light was taken down because the state department of highways had held the signal was unnecessary, Millersburg authorities said.

The bus, running on the Red Eagle line, was driven by Richard Lawrence of Newcomerstown, and

Says Ferguson Is Playing Politics With Human Misery

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Administrator H. C. Atkinson ordered first aid rooms installed at the bureau of unemployment compensation today and said he would investigate reports that several feminine employes had fainted recently because of malnutrition as the result of going payless.

Atkinson issued a statement accusing State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson of "playing politics with human misery" in holding up bureau payrolls.

Ferguson said payrolls had been held up pending an attorney general's opinion on validity of the bureau's reorganization by the Republican state administration and the right of Atkinson to dismiss civil service employes upon expiration of their 90-day probationary periods.

Ferguson asserted that scores of Democrat workers had been supplanted by Republicans since the reorganization last month and that he would ask congress to investigate on the ground that 2,000 workers were paid with federal funds.

MEXICO CITY—(AP)—Irate fans burned stands in the Asturias park yesterday in protest against an umpire's decision which gave the Asturias soccer team a 3-to-2 victory over the Necaxa eleven. The damage was estimated at $10,000.

Ex-Racketeer

One of the last of the old-time prohibition racketeers, Johnny Torrio, shown above, is facing trial on charges of evading income taxes in excess of $1,000,000. He was arrested in New York as he was about to flee the country.

MAYOR TO SEEK ENGINEER'S AID

Council to Be Asked to Bolster Staff by Hiring Assistant at April 7 Meeting.

Acting to bolster the city's engineering staff, Mayor Claude M. Hunter said today that he would ask council at its April 7 meeting to consider the employment of an assistant city engineer.

He said that he would have legislation drafted that would provide for the employment of a licensed engineer in department to serve as an assistant to City Engineer W. C. Statler.

The civil service commission already has been notified of the contemplated action and is expected to hold an examination for the position, Hunter added. The commission has no eligible list for the engineering department.

The mayor's action follows a move to fill two vacancies in the engineering department, recently created by the resignation of a draftsman and a rodman, both of whom accepted positions with the state highway department on a salary basis. The city's ordinance, governing the jobs sets up a daily wage for actual days worked.

Hunter said he would seek to have the assistant's pay placed on a salary basis to be determined by council. The rodman vacancy in the department already had been filled.

AWAIT DECISION

Four Ousted With Ohio Warden to Hear Fate Today.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Four Ohio penitentiary officers suspended with James C. Woodard, dismissed warden, looked for a decision today on whether removal charges would be filed against them.

Acting Warden William F. Amrine indicated last night that a decision could be expected during the day affecting the quartet. Col. William J. Walker, assistant deputy warden, and Guards Thomas Joyce, John B Farley and James Woodard, jr., the ousted warden's son.

The four officers ,under 30-day suspension, would be reinstated automatically Saturday unless removal charges are filed against them.

Woodard received a "disciplinary" suspension March 2 during an investigation ordered by Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood and was dismissed Saturday, effective April 1. He has until April 11 to appeal to the state civil service commission for reinstatement.

BATTLE FLOOD

Montana Dam Workers Strive to Bolster Dikes.

GLASGOW, Mont. — (U.P.) — All available men in Glasgow and workers from the nearby Fort Peck dam project were pressed into service today in a desperate attempt to bolster a dike against the onslaught of the Milk river flood waters.

Lashed by a bitter gale from the north, weary workers rushed cinders and sandbags to weak spots in the dike as they developed under the pressure of water 20 feet above normal.

MERGER PLAN DEADLOCKS COUNTY BOARD

School Heads to Confer Again Tuesday on 2-Year-Old Rural Wrangle.

NO SOLUTION IN SIGHT

Two Members Favor Proposed Consolidation, Three Want State to Handle It.

With three consecutive meetings of the county board of education failing to produce results, the two-year-old wrangle over the proposed consolidation of the Butler township schools with the Union rural district appeared no nearer a solution today than when it started.

At the end of a three-hour session Saturday, two board members favored the merger and three preferred to let the state department of education effect the consolidation.

Takes Up Proposal Again.

The board is scheduled to meet again Tuesday night att he courthouse to consider the proposal, but one of the members said today that he saw no chance of the entire board agreeing on either plan.

The state department asserted definitely last week that it would compel the districts to consolidate in the interest of economy unless the county and township boards can work out a plan.

Boyd Robinson, county superintendent, who asked the county board to act Saturday, has consistently declined to take the initiative in merging the districts and has remained silent on the board's discussions.

Fight Consolidation.

School officials at Adario in Butler township repeated today that they will continue to fight any proposal for consolidation that would result in the closing of their school.

Otis Tucker, clerk of the Butler township board, said he had submitted statements to each member of the county board showing that the cost per pupil for operating the Adario school is much lower than Supt. Robinson had estimated.

Tucker said the cost last year was $138.92 for high school pupils and $71.28 for grade pupils. The state contributed $98.22 for each high school pupil and $50.40 for each grade pupil. The remainder was paid from local tax funds.

Placing the Adario high school on the conditional list about three years ago, the state department of education threatened to cut off state funds to Butler township schools unless there is a consolidation to reduce the per-pupil cost.

Tucker said the Butler township board would appeal to the state again to keep the Adario schools

EATS 24 LIVE FISH ON WAGER

Harvard Sophomore Uses Orange Juice for Chaser.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — (AP) — A Harvard sophomore, Irving M. Clark, 20, of Seattle, Wash., claimed the goldfish eating championship today.

Clark reported he ate 24 life goldfish in a little more than five minutes yesterday, using orange juice as a chaser after each fish. "I could have eaten 50," he declared.

Clark was spurred on, he said, by a telephone call from Frank Pope of Franklin and Marshall college who bet him $50 he couldn't eat more than Pope. Pope is reported to have downed a mere three.

Before Rain Drove Spring Away

—News-Journal Photos.

It was spring, sure 'nough, Saturday, and if the weather man's report isn't sufficient evidence, here are four other bits of evidence gathered by The News-Journal's strolling camera man. At the top left are Alice and Lillian Nipper, Millsborough road, enjoying the swing at Country Day school on their way home from downtown. At the top right is Edwin Macy, 48 Douglas avenue, munching an ice cream cone. Even Baby Peggy Geiger in the arms of her mother, Mrs. Joseph T. Geiger, is obviously attired in a spring outfit as she takes in the sights along Park avenue west. At the lower right Sue Ebersole, 246 Westbrook avenue, takes Boots for a stroll in North Lake park. Add them all together and they spell Spring with a capital letter. Today—well, today would be a different story.

Mercury Skids 45 Degrees To Rout Brief Stay of 'Summer'

A 45-degree drop in temperature over the week-end sent Mansfielders scurrying in search of coats that had been discarded Saturday and Sunday, and had wrapped a blanket of ice round trees and shrubbery this morning.

hats were unnecessary and youngsters romped in the warm sunshine, while the official thermometer recorded a temperature of 77. Sunday afternoon it had dropped only six degrees, but early this morning it was back to freezing with the thermometer dropping to 32. The average for the period was 58 degrees, 18 above the average for a number of years.

A light rain fell yesterday afternoon and intermittently through the night and eadly this morning had turned to ice on trees and bushes. Forecasts for the next two days call for clearing skies but colder tonight; Tuesday fair and colder, and possible rain on Wednesday.

Two days of spring made early plants shoot up and brought trees into bud. In a number of yards crocuses were in bloom, tulips were up five inches above the ground, while jonquils and daffodils were in bud.

RULES ON TAXES

Supreme Court Says States Can Tax Federal Employes.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The supreme court ruled today that a state has constitutional power to tax the salaries of employes or officials of the federal government or its instrumentalities.

This decision was delivered on litigation involving an attempt by New York and Utah to impose an income tax on federal employes.

The opinion in effect approved part of President Roosevelt's tax recommendation to congress. He asked for legislation permitting reciprocal taxation of the salaries of federal and state employes.

Whether the federal government can tax state employes may await future determination. The court already has gone a long way in that direction.

Yankee Clipper At Azores On Test Flight To Europe

(By Associated Press)

BALTIMORE—The flying boat Yankee Clipper landed at Horta, the Azores, at 8:07 Eastern Standard time today, 17 hours and 33 minutes out of Baltimore on a transAtlantic flight over the route followed by the old American sailing clippers.

Pan-American Airways, which will maugurate regular passenger service to Europe later in the summer, announced the clipper's arrival in a brief bulletin from the ship. The time was slightly under the 18 hours estimated for the first leg of the flight.

Carrying 21 crewmen and technicians—the largest number ever to fly the Atlantic in a heavier-than-air machine— and enough gasoline for 5,000 miles, the Clipper took off yesterday at 2:34 p. m. (EST).

Pan American officials called it a routine flight, to survey facilities at Horta; Lisbon, Portugal; Marseilles, France; Southampton, England and Fornes, Ireland.

The boat is due to leave Horta Wednesday for Lisbon. The same ports will be touched on the return flight, the round-trip requiring two weeks.

BRICKER SETS UP ECONOMY RULE TONIGHT

Governor to Deliver Message to Legislature, Insist on Cutting Costs.

ALL EXPENSE BUNCHED

Budget Set at $275,000,000 for Operation of All State Departments.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Drastic economies in state government will be recommended to the Ohio legislature tonight by Gov. John W. Bricker, it was reported, with a 1939-40 budget approximating $275,000,000.

The Republican administration, seeking to avoid new taxes during the two years for which it was elected, appears determined to make the state operate within its income.

State departments undoubtedly will be required to tighten their belts to produce savings which will permit the application of $3,000,000 a year on the school foundation program debt, estimated at $17,000,000.

All Departments Included.

The $275,000,000 represents the largest single spending bill in the state's history, but administration spokesmen hasten to explain that it is not so bad as it looks. The 1937-38 budget was $94,500,000.

The 1939-40 budget for the first time consolidates all the state's proposed expenditures in one bill. Heretofore the biennial appropriation bill included only expenditures from the general revenue fund. Numerous other bills carried appropriations for activities such as old age pensions, aid for school and operation of the liquor department.

The new budget, it was reported, will contain $98,000,000 for the school foundation program; $64,000,000 for old age pensions, and $20,000,000 for poor relief. Relief appropriations for 1938 alone totaled $14,222,000.

The budget bill is the last major piece of legislation awaited the general assembly, whose leaders hope to quit work by May 1 or 15. The legislature is expected to go to work on the measure immediately.

The triumph of Nationalist armies in Spain lengthened the shadow of Premier Benito Mussolini across the Mediterranean today as France and Italy weighed prospects for a peaceful settlement of their colonial quarrel.

Nationalist troops of Gen. Francisco Franco, backed by the power of Fascist Italy, cracked up Spanish republican lines on the Estremadura and Toledo fronts without meeting serious resistance and Franco's troops prepared to march into a starved and war-weary Madrid.

Except for cleaning out the centers of extremist resistance, the 32-months-old civil war was all but over and the problem of Spain's future role in the European balance of power was actually presented to the democratic and dictatorial blocs, especially in the tense Mediterranean area.

Fascist Premier Benito Mussolini's speech yesterday encouraged a lessening of general tension because his attitude toward France was comparatively moderate.

He offered to negotiate a settlement. He spoke of Djibouti, French port on the Red Sea that is vital to Italian Ethiopia; of the Suez canal, which France dominates but to which commerce between Italy and Ethiopia contributes tremendous tolls; and of Tunisia, the French colony in North Africa which was long ago grabbed from under the nose of Rome and where Italy's 95,000 residents are outnumbered by only 10,000 by the French.

Chance to Negotiate.

In these centers of trouble, Mussolini presumably wants concessions that will relieve the strain on Italian economy, concessions that France might gracefully negotiate if a calm approach is undertaken by both sides. Only in Tunisia, where the Fascist seek greater political rights for the Italian minority, does the conflict get on acutely dangerous ground.

Premier Edouard Daladier of France, now invested with the powers of dictator, indicated that he would be ready to deal with the quarrel in a manner as moderate as Mussolini's but against a background of armed strength also as great as that of the Italian premier. France moved to strengthen her naval forces in the Mediterranean even while expressing satisfaction with Mussolini's attitude.

There is little hope, however, that Italy and France can suddenly pat each other on the back and call off their controversy. Both nations are now under dictatorial regimes. Daladier's role as strong man in France depends

SPAIN: Gen. Franco Swings His Forces For Drive On Madrid

HENDAYE, France—(At the Spanish Frontier)—(AP)—Nationalist Generalissimo Franco was reported today to have swung his central army into an offensive designer to smash a way into Madrid after peace negotiations failed to bring an agreement with the republican government.

Nationalist forces were said to have advanced to new positions on the Madrid front, the Toledo front, and in the Cordoba region in south central Spain against only weak resistance.

Republicans immediately announced by radio that they would surrender their entire airforce as evidence of good faith. Earlier, reports to the nationalist command at Irun said Franco's troops might enter Madrid today.

A breakdown in negotiations for surrender of Madrid had sent the Nationalists in the south, under General Gonzalo Queipo De Llano, toward the rich Almaden mercury mines.

Subsequent border reports said the Madrid national defense council decided to surrender the capital despite the collapse of peace negotiations.

If the weather permits, these sources said, the republican air force might fly soon to Burgos and surrender, as a token of the submission of the capital city and the entire area under the control of the Madrid council.

In Madrid, a republican spokesman said snowstorms raging through central Spain made impossible the delivery of Madrid's airplanes yesterday to the nationalist capital.

Nationalist sources said the storm was only an excuse. The republicans, they declared, still wanted to haggle over terms of surrender already set.

PARIS: Daladier Draws Up His Reply To Premier Mussolini

BULLETIN

PARIS—(U.P.)—The council of ministers, debating Italy's Mediterranean demands as outlined by Premier Benito Mussolini Sunday, decreed today immediate strengthening of the French fleet.

PARIS—(AP)—Premier Daladier, secure in his dictatorial decree powers, mapped a reply today to Premier Mussolini's African demands—a reply designed to permit opening negotiations for a French-Italian settlement.

Sources close to Daladier said the reply would take one of two forms: Either a direct note to Rome through regular diplomatic channels, asking Italy just what she wants, or a similar question to be put in a broadcast speech on Wednesday.

Reconciliation appeared to be closer than at any time since Dec. 17 when Mussolini denounced the 1935 treaty which he initialed at Rome with Pierre Laval, then the French premier.

Although Mussolini's speech yesterday was far from specific on what he wants in Africa, hopes for reconciliation were retarded by the French fear that Mussolini later would ask what Daladier's government, backed by the nation, has said could not and would not be granted:

1. Territorial concessions.
2. Rights in Tunisia, French North African protectorate, beyond those granted to Italy in the 1935 treaty.

Mussolini pointed out that in the denunciation of the 1935 treaty "Italian problems with France

Propinquity Causes Trouble

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Some time ago this column ran a Girl-and-Boss series to which readers from Maine to California contributed.

These confessions and inquiries into the "office-wife" question appeared for about six weeks, and I supposed the subject had been exhausted as far as this column was concerned.

We had every conceivable type of Girl-and-Boss problem—even that of the boss who happened to be a woman and the secretary a young man who couldn't resist falling in love with her, though she was old enough to be his mother. The trouble in all these instances is plainly propinquity. Human nature being what it is, one falls in love with what is near at hand.

Sometimes the Girl-and-Boss problem has a happy ending, as when the boss marries his young secretary, and she becomes his boss; sometimes the ending is not happy, as in the case of a girl who writes the following letter:

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"What is the matter with me? Am I just a mush of sentimental day-dreams, or is it the natural thing for every girl to fall in love with her boss? I resigned one job because I found myself slipping into love with a married man. He discovered how much I cared and would have been more than willing to have an "affair" with me. But I was not agreeable to that type of adventure. He was 40, I was 25.

"I got another job which I've held for the past six months, and I find myself becoming silly again. The boss isn't married this time. He's a gay bachelor of 35, very eligible. Judging by the number of telephone calls he gets from girls and married women, I imagine he must be very popular. I don't know if he's engaged or not, but I'm not going to add to my worries by falling in love with him.

"Of course, like every girl, I hope to marry and live happily ever after; but I don't want to have a messy affair with a married man or fall in love with someone who regards me as a piece of office furniture. Am I sillier than most girls? I'm really becoming worried.

"MISS X."

The trouble with you, my dear, is that you like a more mature type of male vintage than you get from youngsters of your own age. But please remember that these bosses were once like you, only 25, and that they probably were immature young egoists who felt they knew it all and liked to lay down the law on every possible subject.

Propinquity has been your trouble. You're thrown into daily contact with men whose positions cause you to look up to them, and both of them probably have the charm that experience brings. Naturally, older men are more interesting than boys.

Don't consider young men boring and immature, I beg of you. These bosses who seem so charming were once young and possibly crude. Cultivate the society of men of your own age.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"In the American vernacular, 'I'll bite'," I told her with a smile. "Why did you want the glamour costumes? I really haven't the faintest idea."

Even her poise was not quite proof against the bantering question. The flush that spread over her cheeks might have been the blush of a school girl.

"I suppose vanity is every woman's besetting sin," she said. "And I am no exception to the rule. At any rate, I was definitely piqued when Philip was so disappointed and shocked at my appearance. Shall I tell you a secret?"

"Please!" I answered, wondering what was coming next.

"Since that night on the yacht, I never have permitted Philip to see me except in the most unbecoming dresses," she confessed a bit shamfacedly. "I really don't know which I was punishing the more, myself or him. But I am tired of that particular game, and I think I shall begin playing another."

She paused, looked at me appealingly, and I saw that she wished me to voice her secret thought.

"Do you mean that you are planning to wear court costume the next time you see him?" I asked.

"Yes, I am," she admitted with a flush, "and I also am going to use eevry artifice I know to give my face the illusion of youth. As for my figure—" she paused, and I finished her sentence for her.

"You don't need to worry about your figure," I told her dryly, for indeed, she had kept all of her youthful lines.

"Yes, I have been fortunate," she admitted candidly, and then went on.

"I feel like a scientist vivisecting a butterfly," she said. "I am frankly curious as to what Philip's reaction will be when he sees me looking as I did the day of the New York reception instead of the hag-like creature which confronted him on the ship a few weeks ago."

"You will have a chance to see that reaction today if you wish," I told her.

"What—what—do you mean?" I countered with a question.

"Do you know why and how I came to the farm today? Did anyone tell you?"

"No." Her eyes were filled with bewilderment.

"Mr. Veritzen brought me. He asked me to come down with him and arrange an interview with you for him. He also asked me to be present at the interview, but that last request I am not going to grant."

"Why not?" she asked quickly.

Without violating Philip Veritzen's confidence I could not tell her the fantastic truth, that he wished me to be present while he proposed marriage to her. I hesitated and parried lamely:

"Because it would be most embarrassing for me as well as you."

And then into the eyes of the woman opposite there came a twinkle of merriment like the one which had illuminated them before.

"You mean because he intends proposing marriage to me?" she asked astoundingly.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, March 28.

THE SIDEREAL operations for this day seem to be working at cross purposes. The spirit of strife, recklessness, turmoil and temper seems to hold sway, disturbing and frustrating all attempts at harmony, happiness and productiveness. However, the forces and faculites are at high tension. The energies are directed in destructive rather than constructive channels, a factor which will incite the loss of faith of employers or superiors, and probably precipitate financial loss, misery and disaster all along the line. Self-control is enjoined.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves inclined to be passionate, violent and vexatious in all manner of contacts, with excellent forces and faculties aimed at destructive efforts. Unless strife, recklessness, impetuosity and self-indulgence be properly curbed, it is probable there may be disastrous and unhappy consequences.

A child born on this day may be inclined to be wayward, headstrong, impetuous and rash, expending excellent energies and faculties in strenuous and ill-directed channels, unless it be given early training and discipline.

Garden plans should be finished by this time to furnish the basis for the seed order. Draw them to scale. Garden advisers always say you ought to draw plans. Do it just once for the experience.

Keep Track Of Little Things

By MME. QUI VIVE

It had been a grand party. You zip into the house, radiant and excited. You'd met a new number and he was terribly taken with you. He'd call you up next day sure as shooting. The girls had been mad about your new frock. Wow! Life simply splendid.

Your young brother, listening to the radio, gives you a fishy glance, says "Ye-ah? You must have looked pretty with your shirt tail showing about three inches." Your balloon of joy explodes. WHY hadn't some one told you?

A wardrobe won't get along by itself. Shoulder straps, for instance. Look at every one before you put the slip away. If one breaks, you're uncomfortable all day. There's always the chance the other one may die on you. What then?

One can't insure against runs in a stocking, but one can avoid holes in the heels. Darn the thin spots. Don't wait for the breaks. A hole in a stocking is a social disgrace.

What about the button that's ready to pop from your coat? Hanging by a thread. Off it comes. And away it goes, necessitating all new buttons. Have foresight; save trouble and bother.

Now that purses are inexpensive and we can have them of different colors, why not outfit each one with powder, rouge and lipstick? If you don't you'll pick up a purse some day, find it contains no dull finish for your nose when it gets shiny. These small toilet articles are essential to morale. When we need 'em, we've got to have them. To find oneself without a powder compact is almost as terrible as chasing out minus a handkerchief.

Have plenty of shoe strings on hand, if you wear oxfords. If a shoe string is going to commit suicide, it will do it just at the wrong time.

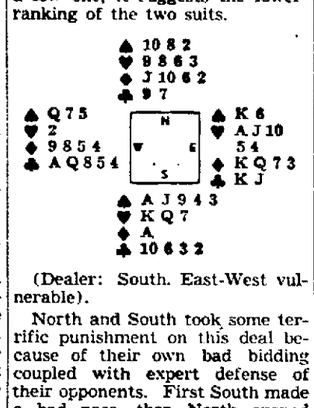
PRODUCING EXTRA RUFFS

WHENEVER YOU LEAD a suit with the purpose of producing a ruff by your partner, he generally wants to get you in the lead again so you can give him another ruff. To do that, he must guess where you have a re-entry, unless you tell him.

Sometimes you can convey a clear message about the entry by means of the particular card you lead for him to ruff. It is a fairly high card, it indicates a desire for a lead of the higher-ranking of the other two side suits. If it is a low one, it suggests the lower-ranking of the two suits.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable).

North and South took some terrific punishment on this deal because of their own bad bidding coupled with expert defense of their opponents. First South made a bad pass, then North opened with a purely psychic 1-Diamond. East doubled, South redoubled. West bid 2-Clubs, East 2-Hearts, South 2-Spades, West 3-Clubs, East 3-No trump, South doubled, North 4-Spades and East doubled.

West's lead of the heart 2 to the A was easy for East to read as a singleton. Sure his partner could ruff the next heart lead, also counting on his mate for club honors from his bid, he preferred a club return after the ruff to a diamond return. So he led his heart 4 to the second trick. West read this correctly, knowing a high heart would have indicated a diamond return. So he underled his club honors.

East returned his heart 5, which his partner read as indicating desire for still another club lead after he ruffed, so a second time he led back a low club. East's J won, and on another heart lead South's trump J was over-ruffed by the Q. The club A was then ruffed in dummy and over-ruffed by the K.

By use of what is called the suit-shift signal, East and West set the contract four tricks, taking the first seven tricks.

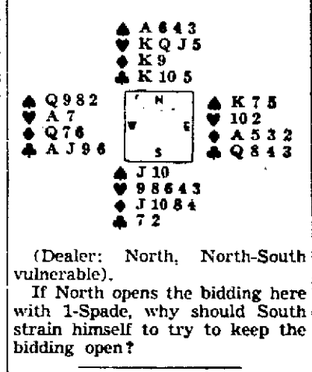
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable).

If North opens the bidding here with 1-Spade, why should South strain himself to try to keep the bidding open?

To remove skins from tomatoes, place the tomatoes on a fork and hold them over a fire. Turn them constantly until the skin becomes slightly charred or bursts. (About two minutes will be long enough.) The skin may be removed then with a sharp knife. The amount of heat will not affect the firmness or flavor of the tomato.

Safety first sponge for flower vase

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Getting a vaseful of garden flowers to the flower show, or to a sick friend's bedside without having the flowers wilt for lack of water, has always been a perplexing problem. Here, however, is a practical suggestion: Try using a safety first sponge in the container.

After the flowers have been arranged in a container of water, work a dry sponge into the neck of the container as shown in the above Garden-Graph. The sponge should be a long, narrow one that can be wedged around the flower stems.

With the safety first sponge in place, the vase of flowers can be taken in an automobile, or carried by hand, without danger of the water slopping out of the container. The dry sponge in the neck of the vase will absorb and hold any which slops up against it as the vase is handled or carried about.

"Body Was a Home of Aching Pains" Says Mansfield Man

East Fifth Street Resident Now Tells How Vendol Gave Marvelous Relief by Acting as a Diuretic to Kidneys and Relieving Constipation.

MR. PARLIE E. WILHELM

Here is a truly interesting report of how Vendol has brought relief to Mr. Parlie E. Wilhelm of 13 E. Fifth St., Mansfield, formerly engineer for the Mansfield Ice Co., now retired, after suffering a long time. Read his statement given to the Vendol Man in Central Drug Store, then if you suffer this way, do not delay in getting the same grand relief. He says:

"For a long time I have suffered from constipation, and my kidneys did not act enough, so between the two, my body was a home for aching pains, and the misery in my muscles, especially my back, limbs and hips was so bad that many nights I couldn't sleep. Besides this, I was called out of bed so often that I hardly got any rest at all, and I just felt tired and wornout all the time.

"Almost every morning I'd get up with a headache and would get so dizzy that everything seemed to whirl around. Spots would float before my eyes and I'd just have to sit down until the dizziness left me.

"I often read in the paper what people said Vendol did for them, so I began taking it, along with the little Vendol laxative tablets, several weeks ago, and I wish I had started sooner.

"Vendol acted as a diuretic to my kidneys and gave the grandest relief from constipation, and that brought relief from all my other troubles. Now my nerves are quiet and I sleep like a child, for my rest isn't disturbed by my kidneys as before. Those headaches and dizzy spells have disappeared, and best of all though, there are no signs of the old aches and pains in my back, limbs and hips.

"Vendol has helped me so much I feel the least I can do is to recommend it at every chance, so that others may be wonderfully benefitted as I was."

Vendol has helped many people right here in this city and nearby towns, so why not give it a chance to help you too? Come to Central Drug Store, Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., ask for the Vendol Man and learn all about it. There is no charge or obligation, so see him today.—Adv.

How gay the world grows overnight, new hats, frocks, dispositions and a new zest at meal times seem to arrive with spring. There's always a period of rejoicing at this time of the year. Everything takes on a new, fresh appearance, and so it would seem that your dinner table and menus should also be refreshed. This is a time to let your imagination run riot in preparing your menu for Easter. A few ideas for menus and recipes may lead you on to other variations.

Chicken Loaf with Mushroom Sauce.

3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
2 chicken bouillon cubes
1½ cups milk
½ teaspoon grated onion
½ to ¾ teaspoon salt
Few grains pepper
2 cups soft bread crumbs
1 egg
2 cups chopped cooked chicken

Melt the butter in a double boiler, add the flour and bouillon cubes and mix well. Add the milk gradually and cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Add the onion, salt, pepper, crumbs, slightly beaten egg and the chicken and mix well. Pack in a well buttered loaf pan and bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. Fah.) for about 1 hour. This makes a soft loaf. Serve with Mushroom Sauce made as follows:

1½ tablespoons butter
1 cup (about ¼ pound) sliced mushrooms
2½ tablespoons flour
1 chicken boullion cube
1¼ cups milk
Salt and pepper

Melt the butter in the top of a double boiler placed directly over the heat. Add the mushrooms and cook over low heat for 5 to 10 minutes or until tender, stirring frequently. Place over hot water, add the flour and boullion cube and mix well. Add the milk gradually and cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Season with salt and pepper to taste. (Canned mushrooms may be used if desired. Use on 4-ounce can mushrooms and substitute ⅓ cup mushroom liquid for ⅓ cup of the milk.) Serves six.

Easter Cake.

½ cup butter
1 cup sugar
1⅔ cups cake flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup milk
¾ teaspoon almond flavoring
½ teaspoon vanilla
Yellow coloring
3 egg whites

Cream the butter, add the sugar gradually and cream thoroughly. Mix and sift the flour, baking powder and salt and add to the first mixture alternately with the milk. Divide the batter into 2 parts, add almond flavoring to one part and the vanilla and the yellow coloring to the other part. Fold half of the stiffly beaten egg whites into each part. Put the batter by spoonfuls into a medium sized buttered tube pan alternating the yellow and white mixtures. Bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. Fah.) for about 35 minutes. Turn out, let cool and spread with boiled frosting made as follows:

1¼ cups sugar
½ cup water
½ teaspoon light corn syrup
2 egg whites
½ teaspoon vanilla

Cook the sugar, water and corn syrup together over low heat, stirring until the sugar is dissolved. Bring to a boil, cover and cook for about 3 minutes. Continue cooking to 242 deg. Fah. or until the mixture spins a long thread. Keep covered as much as possible. (On a very damp day the mixture may have to be cooked to 248 deg. Fah. before a long thread forms.) Wipe off any crystals on the sides of the pan and pour the hot syrup slowly over the stiffly beaten egg whites beating constantly. Add the vanilla and beat until cool and stiff enough to spread.

Motor's Power Blamed for Plane Crash That Killed 8

PILOT TELLS HOW AIRLINER 'SHOOK APART'

Ship Plunges to Ground Soon After Oklahoma City Take-off; 4 Escape.

(By Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY—A powerful motor which "shook to pieces" was blamed by the pilot today for the fiery crash of a twin-engined Braniff airliner which killed eight persons.

Four persons, including the pilot, Capt. Claude Seaton of Dallas, escaped with injuries in the Sunday morning crash.

"The left motor shook to pieces. I tried to make it back to the field, but we couldn't," Dr. H. D. Collins quoted Seaton.

Federal investigators examined the debris as they sought officially to fix the cause of the crash.

Of the four survivors, Carl Erickson, a passenger from Chicago, was least seriously injured. The others, Capt. Seaton, Co-Pilot Malcolm Wallace and Perry R. Smith, a passenger, Corpus Christie, Tex., were injured seriously but were expected to recover.

Passenger's Story.

"We had just taken off," said Erickson. "I was sitting on the left side and was looking out the window. The propellor seemed to give way and the left motor went bad. Then we crashed.

The eight killed were trapped in the plane that burst into flames.

The ship smashed into the ground just west of the municipal airport boundary lights about 3 a. m. It just had taken off into a north wind when it radioed: "Turn on lights. Returning to field."

The left motor was found 20 yards from the wreckage. The left wing was torn off. Part of the cabin was shorn away.

The bodies of the victims were slumped in the forward part of the ship. The hostess, Miss Louise Zarr, 25, Dallas, was at her post.

First Passenger Fatality.

The crash was the first fatal to a passenger in the airline's history. Six company employes were killed Dec. 23, 1936, in a test flight at Dallas.

Two of the victims, Ben Coplon and Barney G. Grossman, 37, brothers-in-law, were en route to the bedside of Coplon's wife, Ida, in a Houston, Tex., hospital. Coplon lived at Chicago. Grossman at Aurora, Ill.

Others killed were R. T. Bate, Denver; Mrs. Georgia Sheldon, of Omaha; Ferim Cairo, Mexican City, and Mrs. E. Hinckley, Port Isabel, Tex.

Eight In Family Drown as Ice Jam Floods Ranchlands

DAWSON CREEK, B. C.,—(U.P.)—Eight members of one family were drowned today when an ice jam at the juncture of the Pine and Murray rivers in northeastern British Columbia flooded a wide area of ranchlands.

Those drowned were so far identified as "the Warrens" and included the father and mother, three children, and three grandchildren. Only the body of one woman was recovered.

Provincial police dispatched food and medicine into the stricken area.

Twelve persons at the hamlet of East Pine were reported in critical condition from exposure.

Warnings were sent to areas down stream directing residents to prepare to evacuate their homes.

Up and Down THE STREET

Forgetting bond issues and building programs for a few hours, Supt. W. L. Miller of Mansfield schools went "back home" over the week-end to help a former teaching associate celebrate 25 years as principal of the Chillicothe schools. The party was for John A. Smith, who has been principal at Chillicothe since 1914, including the years Supt. Miller headed the schools there before coming to Mansfield. Mrs. Miller joined in the celebration which was attended by a number of Smith's former associates.

Ernest Shaffner, Myers road, who has been ill and confined to his home for more than four years has found that old friends do not forget a person who is "out of circulation." For his birthday this week he received more than 60 greetings and yesterday there was a birthday party for him, attended by 15 friends and relatives.

Patrolman George Yoakum was sporting a new police badge today. It wasn't the regulation kind but a "special officer" shield. Yoakum removed his badge from his uniform several days ago and lost it and in the meantime he says he'll have to be satisfied with being a "special officer."

* * *

Lieut. C. J. Kalstein and Patrolman W. P. Lemmons were still wondering today whether it was the first signs of spring or whether it was the spirit of adventure that caused two small youngsters to run away from home at 2:30 in the morning. The officers cruising past the Memorial hall on Park avenue west at that hour Sunday found an eight-year-old boy and his sister sitting on the steps enjoying the early morning air. They took them home and turned them over to their parents who hadn't known that they had gotten up after being put to bed and left the house.

* * *

Leo Yuncker had friends guessing yesterday when he told them in all seriousness that he had constructed and put up a 20-room house with the aid of only three men. Which was the truth, but it was an apartment house for martins. In spite of its swankiness, however, it won't be entered to the bird house contest, which Yuncker Brothers are sponsoring—and which ends April 8—because that is open only to boys of the city and county.

HELD IN MURDER

Vermont Man Admits 'Mistake' in Poison Liquor Deaths.

KEENE, N. H.—(AP)—Alfred Wojehick, 35, of Brattleboro, Vt., charged with murder in the "mistake" poison liquor deaths of a man and woman, paced his jail cell today at friends gathered for funeral services for the innocent victims.

Edgar Smart, 28, and Mrs. Julia Wheaton, 25, died Friday night in Ashuelot after drinking poisoned whisky which county Solicitor John R. Goodnow said Wojehick confessed he intended for his estranged wife, Mrs. Lois Smart Wojehick, 20.

The solicitor quoted the distraught Brattleboro town employe as saying after the warrants were served "my regret now is that I will not get my wife back." Wojehick had been seeking reconciliation with his pretty, blond wife, but Goodnow said he planned to take his own life if she had died.

ELECTION TOPS UAW BUSINESS

Move Underway for Selection of Officers at First Cleveland Session.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Election maneuvers held the center of the stage today for the opening of the CIO United Auto Workers convention.

Roland J. Thomas, elected president of the union by the executive board upon the recent expulsion of Homer Martin, and the only openly avowed candidate for the presidency, faced a threat in a reported movement supporting the present secretary-treasurer, George Addes, for the office.

Prominent in the election scene were Richard T. Frankensteen, understood to be a candidate for secretary-treasurer, and Walter Reuther, leader of the 23,000-member Detroit west side local.

A movement was reported to force an election at the opening session today, instead of at the close of the convention. This would assure election of five vice presidents under the present union constitution, before action is taken on a constitution committee indorsed to change providing for only one vice president.

Philip Murray and Sidney Hillman, CIO vice presidents, were expected to confer with leaders in an effort to forestall a clash over union control.

In his president's report, made public before the opening of the convention, Thomas placed the CIO-UAW membership at 310,000, and that of the Martin faction at 15,947 "temporary affiliated" members. Martin recently claimed 107,000 members.

BENNY READY TO CHANGE PLEA IN NEW YORK SMUGGLING CASE

(By United Press)

HOLLYWOOD — Jack Benny, radio and screen comedian, said today he probably would plead either nolo contendere or guilty to a smuggling charge when his case is called in New York federal court next week.

"However," he said, "Final determination will not be made until I have conferred with my attorneys when I arrive in New York."

When indicted jointly with Albert N. Chaperau on Jan. 10, Benny pleaded not guilty and said he would fight the charge, which accused him of purchasing smuggled jewelry from Chaperau, on the grounds he did not know it was smuggled.

Benny indicated that his chief New York counsel, William J. Donovan, would ask the court's permission to withdraw the guilty plea and enter one of nolo contendere which, without admitting guilt, subjects one to conviction. That failing he would ask permission to change the plea to guilty, it was understood.

Chaperau, who was also named in smuggling indictments against radio comedian George Burns and against Mrs. Elma N. Lauer, wife of a New York supreme court judge, pleaded guilty. Burns and Mrs. Lauer also pleaded guilty.

Although Benny would not discuss the case further, his friends said that if he entered the nolo contendere plea, he said he would seek the mercy of the court by pointing out that it was not reasonable to believe that a man who pays as much income tax as he does deliberately would try to cheat the government out of $500 duty and that if any offense were committed the actor was not aware of it.

He is charged with buying between $1,200 and $2,000 worth of jewels from Chaperau on which no duty had been paid.

PAYS WITH LIFE

WPA Worker Goes to Chair for Murder of Child.

BELLEFONTE, Pa.—(AP)—Roy Lockard early today calmly walked unassisted to the electric chair he escaped 15 times through executive clemency and was put to death for killing his one-time sweetheart's baby boy because he interfered with their "dates."

The 29-year-old former Altoona WPA worker who repeatedly had asserted "if I have to go I'll keep my chin up," did not speak a word as he strided into the death chamber smiling slightly.

He glanced about at the 18 men there to witness his execution then seated himself in the oaken death chair. Guards quickly applied the masks and electrodes and 2,000 volts of electricity snuffed out the slayer's life in two minutes.

Lockard admitted killing three-year-old Matthew "Sonny" Karmendi with a railroad spike in 1936 while Mrs. Margaret Garmendi held the child in her arms on an Altoona street.

"We could not go to any shows because Sonny would go home and tell his dad," the slayer testified.

PARITY PAYMENT UNDER ATTACK BY CITY SOLONS

Sponsors Remain Confident of House Approval of Plan to Increase Farm Income.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Congressional action on farm and relief appropriations was complicated today by an apparent split in the hastily-formed alliance of rural and urban house members advocating additional funds.

Chairman Sabath (D-Ill) of the house rules committee announced his opposition to including $250,000,000 for farm party payments in the $1,067,000,000 agriculture department bill.

Sabath previously was one of several city congressmen who had indicated willingness to support the $250,000,000 item—not recommended by the president—if farm members would vote for the $150,000,000 emergency WPA fund sought by urban representatives and the administration.

"The parity payments seem to me an unnecessary expenditure of a quarter billion dollars," Sabath said today. "That's not peanuts Some of these boys have been squealing for economy on relief. I want to see how sincere they are."

Sponsors Confident.

Opponents of the parity fund expressed hope that a sizable portion of the farm-city group would follow Sabath's example, but sponsors remained confident that the house would approve the money.

The parity payments are intended to place farm income on a par with the prices of articles which farmers buy. They would be in addition to $500,000,000 for regular benefits under the administration's agricultural program.

Economy advocates in the senate were pessimistic about the chances of holding down either the farm or the relief appropriation. Well-informed sources said Vice-President Garner had dropped his demand that farm payments be curbed.

Before the house recessed for the week-end, Republicans had succeeded in striking out of the farm bill more than $500,000 in special funds for control of tree and plant diseases and insects. Their contention that these funds had not been authorized by separate legislation was upheld.

In regard to the relief bill, some members were discussing the possibility of emergency action to prevent a slash of 400,000 workers from WPA jobs next Monday.

FAIR ENOUGH!

At Least 2 Pennsylvania Towns Operate Lotteries In Open, Fairly Honestly

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

PHILADELPHIA—With no desire to blow the whistle but strictly as a matter of news, this column reports that there are three public lotteries in the hard coal town of Shenandoah, Schuylkill county, Pa., two of them operated by the local chapters of well-known war veterans' organizations, the third ostensibly by a group of volunteer firemen, and that drawings have be held regularly for two years on Saturday nights.

The chances cost 10 cents each, three for a quarter and the capital prizes vary in proportion to the sales, being sometimes as high as $2,500. There are minor prizes also, the lowest being $10.

The profits of the first two are said to be devoted to the succor of widows and orphans of local war veterans and of needy veterans themselves, and the promoters of the so-called firemen's lottery claim they use their profits to buy fire-fighting equipment. All three are popular with the people of Shenandoah, where poverty is rife and the bootlegging of coal has acquired the dignity of a recognized industry, and all are run in violation of the laws of the state, but without apparent violation of any federal law. Some winners of substantial prizes are said to have invested the money in the coal bootlegging business.

The business of these drawings has spread to several other counties, and a rival lottery has been started in Mahanoy City. But the Shenandoah promoters have in mind the unhappy fate that befell a prosperous lottery in Pottsville a few years ago, and their natural desire to tap sources of fresh money in large cities is governed by a fear of ruin through counterfeiting and legal intervention.

The Pottsville lottery began with harmless, even philanthropic, intent in a social group of German-Americans who gave liberally of their profits to local hospitals, churches and charitable institutions.

However, Philadelphia became aware of the gamble, and as the Philadelphia trade increased, counterfeiters moved in. Complaints followed, the state police raided the club one night while the drawwas in progress and the lottery was abandoned, although the Schuylkill county grand jury, in deference to local tradition and opinion, refused to indict. It appears to be no crime to counterfeit tickets of a draw which of itself is illegal, and this practical immunity naturally is most inviting to sordid characters.

The Shenandoah lotteries enjoy a good local reputation as to the honesty of the drawings, but, of course, an audit of the books by some agency as exacting as the United States internal revenue, done with an eye to the collection of income taxes, might reveal that not all the profits go to the beneficiaries who are publicly named.

Almost all the adult population and many of the children of Shenandoah are habitual customers of one or more of these gambles, and among the poor people of the coal country, at least, there is strong sentiment in favor of a monopolistic state lottery with cheap chances.

The thought that a man might as well be broke as down to his last dime, but might win a fortune with that dime, is prominent in the arguments for a state lottery, and in the absence of that boon for the retention of the present lotteries. The big winners usually get drunk and get numbers of their friends drunk with them.

Slot machines, the numbers racket and the punch board, the latter a device used to a large extent to steal candy money from poor children, also thrive in the coal country, particularly in Schuylkill county. The toleration of these gambles, and the lotteries as well, naturally present open opportunities for graft by politicians and public officers of various ranks, and there is no reason to doubt that the graft is good. Yet it may be said also that a statesman running for office on an anti-gambling platform would get only the votes of himself and his family

It will be useless to send mail orders to the Shenandoah lotteries, even in the not improbable event of one's guessing the names of the veterans' organizations, which are familiar to one and all. The operators realize that mail operations would complicate matters and presently bring federal prosecution and dissolution.

There may be others, but these three and the one at Mahanoy City are the only open public lotteries in the United States in the knowledge of your correspondent who may be shockingly ignorant of such matters.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Lupe, the original whoopee, is clattering up the sound stages again—and the word is clatter.

First you hear her, then you see her—the Velez. She's practicing a tap routine in floppy sandals, and she breaks out—between breaths and taps—in a gusty vocalization of "My Heart Belongs to Daddy." The song has nothing to do with the movie she's making but seems to be her theme today.

She's singing about her heart and then, when you tie her to a chair to keep her still a few minutes between scenes, she says it doesn't belong to anybody.

This is typically Lupe, because a few days before she has said nice things about a mysterious, attractive New York swain. But now all she knows about that is what she's read in the papers

"I weesh they'd teel me where he is, thees fine lover they write about," she pouts, working hard to keep her feet still.

"All I know is I read I'm going to Reno to divorce John-nee (Weissmuller) queeck. When I go I don't know—I just read it."

You, like Lupe, may have read it too. You read it because Lupe said it—but Lupe doesn't remember that. Because Lupe says so much from one day to another you can't expect Lupe to remember what she's said.

Her scene today (in "The Girl From Mexico") has her cracking a vase over Leon Errol's head. But Lupe never, never does such things unless the script calls for it.

"They say I have terrible temper. I have not temper. The only temper I have is when I get paid for it. I break vase today. I get salary for it. I break my beautiful long finger nail today too. See my be-you-tiful nail—all short again!"

The Velez energy never runs down. She taps when less animated players rest. She sings when they are too weary to talk. She eats:

"Today for lunch I have tomato soup with rice, and a salad, and four hot dogs, and sauerkraut, and ice cream. You see I eat what I please, when I please. This morning I wake up at 3 and I have beer and a cheese sandwich. When I sleep I sleep like nobody else—hard. I wake up rested.

* * *

"You can't kill a bad one. The good die young, but the black sheep—that's Lupe—you can't kill her. In New York the doctor say I must rest, but I get seeck of that. I get up and go the Stork club. . . . "

Lupe won't be here long. Never anywhere long.

"I like to make picture here, then I go. Two months I can stan' Hollywood, no more. I get seeck of it. Same in New York, same in Buenos Aires, same every place. I have grand time everywhere, meet fine friends, have fun, then move on. I cannot stay same place all the time."

From staying in same chair too long Lupe, the whoopee, is rescued by her director. She advances to the fray, to the lovely breakaway vases, to her waiting glass of "coke." Her eyes are bright and her auburn hair is gleaming as she swigs a swig before stepping into the camera range. She looks as healthy and vital as she did before—before that incredible lunch!

BUCKS, WOLVES RESUME TANK DUEL THIS WEEK

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—The swimmers of the University of Michigan and Ohio State will resume a "one-two" duel for national honors in Ohio State natatorium this week at the national indoor amateur athletic union championships.

The Wolves and Bucks have clashed in team competition four times this winter and Ohio has yet to finish ahead of Matt Mann's speedy pupils. Two dual meets ended in point deadlocks but Michigan topped the Bucks and the rest of the field at the Big Ten championships March 18 at Purdue and at the N. C. A. A. meet Friday and Saturday at Ann Arbor.

Ohio State Faces Tall Team in N. C. A. A. Title Game in Chicago Tonight.

EVANSTON, Ill.—(AP)—The University of Oregon and Ohio State, exponents of the fast break and offensive basketball, play tonight at Northwestern University's Patten gymnasium for the championship of the National Collegiate Athletic association. Oregon is favored.

Both teams, playing on the theory a good offense is the best defense, carved impressive season records. Oregon won the Pacific Coast conference title, defeated Texas and Oklahoma in the N. C. A. A. western regional meet and would up with 26 victories in 31 games.

The Webfoots, averaging six feet, 2½ inches in height, hit the bucket for 1,525 points, an average of 49 2 per start.

Hull Leads State.

Ohio State's record also is outstanding. The Buckeyes lost four of their seven games, then moved into high gear and took the Big Ten title with 10 victories in 12 games with Jimmy Hull, captain and forward, rolling up 169 points in league competition.

The Bucks averaged better than 58 points in downing Wake Forest and Villanova in the N. C. A. A. eastern regional meet

Preceding the title battle will be a game between Northwestern players under the rules of basketball as originated in 1891 by Dr. James Naismith, now a member of the University of Kansas faculty.

Nine men will play on each side, using peach baskets as goals. Dr. Naismith will attend the game as will the coaches attending the national basketball convention in Chicago.

Probable starting lineups of the title game:

Ohio State	Pos.	Oregon
Hull	F	Gale
Baker	F	Dick
Schick	C	Wintermute
Lynch	G	Anet
Boughner	G	Johansen

Starting time: 8:30 (C.S.T.)

RANDOM SHOTS

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

HOWARD HOSLER'S library includes a number of prize editions, but his proudest possessions are two handbooks published by the Ohio Athletic association before the war period. . . . That Mansfield figured prominently in athletics during those days is shown in the yearbooks. . . . On Page 10 of the 1915 annual, for instance, is a picture of the Mansfield high cage squad . . . It included Dr D M Leuthner and Pete Henry . . . They are also conspicuous in the Mansfield grid photo in the book . . . A few pages deeper, Henry's picture is again shown . . . The Tygers' court record that season was marred by only three defeats, the record published in the book disclosed . . . One of their victories was registered at the expense of Shelby by a 74 to 4 margin . . . Mansfield's grid record included only one defeat

Photos of the Richland county track and field meet are shown in the back pages. . . . The Fairground has changed considerably since then . . . but the old judges' stand remains . . . The grandstand was a low wooden structure in those days

The 1916 yearbook also includes photos of Mansfielders. . . . Tim Murphy and Roy Craig are shown in the picture of the football team. . . . There are individual photos of Murphy and Leuthner, who were selected on the all-Ohio cage squad . . . Incidentally the Mansfield cagers were eliminated in the state tournament in 1916 by Bellevue, the school trimmed by the Tygers in the finals of the district elimination this year . . . One of the pictures in the book that would bring a laugh today is of the Pioneer girls' cage team. . . . The girls wore dust caps, if you know what they are.

Complete Plans for 'Fan Night' Tonight

FINAL preparations for the most gigantic fan affair ever staged in the city will be made at a meeting of the Mansfield Baseball Citizens' committee at the Chamber of Commerce at 8:30 p. m. today.

The "Fan Night" celebration will be held at the American Legion auditorium Wednesday evening, and Herbert Slough, chairman of the Citizens' committee, expects a "packed house."

The purpose of the "Fan Night" party is to arouse interest in the Mansfield Ohio State league club's opening game of the season with Tiffin at the Fairground Wednesday, May 3.

An opening day ticket campaign will be launched this week, and solicitors, numbering more than 100, hope to close the sale within 10 days.

Tickets for the opening game will be sold for $1, and will admit purchasers to any seat in the remodeled park except the boxes.

The feature of the "Fan Night" party will be the showing of the official films of both the American and National leagues.

Seeks Ruffian For Russian

Nolan Attempts to Sign Raines for Friday Bout.

An old adage offers the conclusion that "fire must be fought by fire," although there are men who doubt its intelligence. At any rate, the Quality club is stringing along with the original version in the case of one Leon Grandovitch, burly Russian heavyweight wrestler.

Grandovitch stopped the winning streak of the likable Frank Sexton here last Friday, although the latter really didn't become a full-fledged public idol until the Russian Panther started mauling him. It wasn't the fact that Grandovitch won that riled the fans, but rather the way in which he accomplished the victory.

Fans have demanded that Tim Nolan sign an opponent who can meet Grandovitch at his own style and the hefty matchmaker stated today that he is dickering for the services of one of the roughest matmen in America, Del "Sailor" Raines of Los Angeles, Calif.

Raines is 5 feet, 10 inches tall and weighs 230 pounds. He has been wrestling professionally for the past eight years. Serving in the United States navy, prior to his pro debut, he won the Asiatic fleet championship. This solid background of amateur mat work has given him a good foundation for the harder pro end of the sport.

Movie fans are probably well acquainted with Del. He was with Chester Morris in "King for a Night" and was a member of the cast of "The Bowery," which starred Wallace Beery and George Raft.

Lacks Hustle

Solters Sees Service in Left Field as Indians Again Bow to Giants, 7 to 4.

NEW ORLEANS — (UP) — Curly-haired Jeff Heath, happy-go-lucky young man and leading batter for the Cleveland Indians last season in his first full season in the American league, is the latest problem-child of Manager Oscar Vitt.

Heath's general lack of hustle coupled with poor hitting and fielding in training camp to date prompted Vitt to bench his star outfielder yesterday as the tribe absorbed a second straight defeat from the New York Giants, 7 to 4.

Vitt admitted he shelved Heath in favor of Julius Solters for disciplinary purposes and not because Carl Hubbell, a left-handed pitcher, was on the mound for the Giants. Vitt said Heath won't stay benched.

"He'll get straightened around, he's just got a few things inside himself to lick," the Indian chief asserted.

If Vitt considered Heath a problem, he had no worries for the moment of another youthful star, Bob Feller. The Iowa farm boy allowed just one hit and one run in five innings of pitching against the Giants.

Tom Drake, a rookie hurler, however, was easy pickings for the Giants and was battered for five runs. He walked three men in one inning.

Carl Hubbell, the Giant ace, worked three hitless and runless innings before retiring because of a drizzle.

Derringer Ready for 1939 Season.

TAMPA, Fla. — (U.P.) — Big Paul Derringer, flagship of the Cincinnati Reds' potents hurling fleet, is ready for the 1939 baseball wars.

Although weak from a recent influenza attack, the ace right-hander limited the hard-hitting Boston Red Sox to three hits in four innings, struck out one batter and walked none as the Reds reversed form and trimmed the Sox, 9 to 5.

"My arm never felt better," Derringer declared. "With a fair share of breaks I think I'll win at least 20 games this season."

Derringer's fine form in his first start seemed to shake the Reds out of their recent doldrums and they looked more like the pennant-favorites they have been tabbed. Offensively, they pounded out 16 hits including two home runs and three triples. Defensively, Shortstop Billy Myers and Second Baseman Lonnie Frey turned in five sparkling double killings that removed any doubt whether Frey would hold his old stand as the regular keystone guardian this year.

Lonnie also smashed out a homer and a triple in three official trips to bat and drove in three runs. First Baseman Frank McCormick helped himself to a home run and a single while Harry Craft collected three singles during the Redleg barrage.

Bucky Walters hurled the last five innings for Cincinnati. Although hit rather freely he bore down with men on bases except for the ninth inning when Red Sox Rookie Paul Campbell blasted a circut blow with one mate on base. Cincinnati met Detroit at Lakeland today.

FRANCO SPANISH DRIVE BOLSTERS CLAIMS OF DUCE

Madrid's Surrender Nearer; Paris Plans Reply to Mussolini's Demands.

upon protecting every inch of French soil.

In Italy, Mussolini's 20-year-old Fascist movement has grown powerful on promises of a great Roman empire around the Mediterranean and he will not suddenly turn meek in the midst of a fearful and rapidly changing Europe.

Meanwhile, Great Britain's hopes of a quick anti-aggression declaration in which France, Poland and Soviet Russia would join against further Nazi expansion have failed for the time being at least to serve even as a warning to Nazi-Fascist partnership.

Sees Rumania Still Keeping Independence.

LONDON—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain told the house of commons today that Rumania "has not signed away her economic indepedence" in her new trade treaty with Germany.

"We must await developments before coming to any definite conclusion," Chamberlain added, however, in answer to a question put to him by Conservative Vyvyan Adams.

"The Rumanian government has informed the British government that the agreement contains no political clause and Rumania has not signed away her economic independence," the prime minister said.

He said the Bucharest government had informed Britain that the accord "is directed against no third party."

In this, it was believed, Chamberlain was referring to the British trade mission to Rumania which Oliver Stanley, president of the board of trade, announced just a week ago would be sent to Bucharest. The mission has not gone but Chamberlain was believed to have indicated that its purpose had not been threatened by Rumania's prior commitment to Germany.

Hungarians Reported In New Slovak Attack.

BRATISLAVA —(U.P.)— Reliable advices from Eperjes said today that the Hungarians had launched an offensive in the Michalovce and Sobrance sector of the eastern Slovakian border, using bombers and artillery.

The attack coincided with the departure of a Czech delegation from Bratislava for Budapest to begin peace negotiations.

It was not known how far the action was initiated by the local Hungarian commander or to what extent it was due to orders from Budapest. It was assumed, however, that it was intended as a last effort to advance the Hungarian occupation as far as possible before the negotiations in Budapest get underway.

Swiss Bolster Guard Along Frontiers.

BERNE—(AP)—The Swiss government took further steps to bolster frontier defenses today by prolonging the annual training period of reserve border forces from one to two weeks.

Some of these border reserves, called up late last week, were rushed to frontier points as a precautionary move in view of the international situation. The movement continued today, most of those summoned being sent immediately by truck to the German frontier.

The Swiss federal council also divided on a one-week training course for territorial reserves who had not figured in previous orders.

Russia Strengthening Baltic Fortifications.

WARSAW—(INS)—Soviet Russia is rushing to strengthen her former fortifications in the Baltic region and along the Rumanian frontier to face possible Nazi German aggression, it was learned in Warsaw today.

The Soviets, according to messages received from Moscow, are strengthening border guards and troop garrisons along the Rumanian, Latvian and Esthonis frontiers as a result of Germany's occupation of Slovakia and Memel.

FUGITIVE BACK IN O. S. R. CELL

Trusty, Free Six Months, Captured In Columbus.

An Ohio State reformatory trusty who escaped from the Sandusky honor camp six months ago was back in the institution today following his return from Columbus by reformatory guards.

He is Phillip Pinetello, 22, who was received at the institution from Franklin county Aug. 8, 1936, to serve from one to 20 years on a charge of operating a motor vehicle without the owners' consent. He escaped Aug. 9, 1938.

Supt. Arthur L. Glattke said that the usual two years will be added to Pinetello's sentence as penalty for his escape.

DALADIER MAPS REPLY TO ITALY

France Believed Willing to Concede Port Rights and More Canal Control.

"These problems have a name," he said. "They are called Tunisia, Djibouti and the Suez canal."

Unofficial contact between Italy and France, it has been said, already has shown that France was ready to consider free port privileges for Italians at Djibouti, French Somaliland capital on the Gulf of Aden and terminus of a railway from Ethiopia, and a greater share in control of the Suez canal.

Thus, unless Italy demanded territory or wished to go a great distance beyond the 1935 provisions regarding Italian rights in Tunisia, France was likely to go far in trying to meet Il Duce's wishes.

Paul Baudouin, director of the Bank of Indo-China, was said to have discussed Djibouti and Suez concessions with Italian officials at Rome last month. More recently Hubert LaGardelle, a French friend of Il Duce, came from Rome for the reported purpose of talking with French authorities.

The cabinet was summoned today to Elysee palace to approve Daladier's plan for replying to Mussolini as well as to consider new decree laws.

WINS THIRD

Mansfield Yopedio Places in State Contest.

The drama presented by the Epworth league of First Methodist Episcopal church in the state Yopedio meeting at Columbus over the week-end, placed third in a group of 13 presentations.

The dramas were not given on a competitive basis, but a summation of the quality of the plays and the players was made by Harold Ehrenstparger, Chicago, authority on religious drama.

Thirty-four from Mansfield attended the meeting and saw the plays which were presented at the Broad Street Presbyterian church on Saturday afternoon and Sunday.

The first four in the summation of Ehrenstparger were: Columbus Glenwood Methodist church presentation, which was the "most consistent;" the Antioch Baptist church of Cleveland, second; the Mansfield group which gave Charles R. Kennedy's "The Terrible Meek," was placed third because it was "one of the best religious plays ever written and was well presented;" and "The Valiant," done by the Springfield Y. M. C. A.

Boyd R. Cornwall of Galion, careless and reckless driving on route 30-S, cited to appear in municipal court March 30.

LeRoy Clements, 17 John Long avenue, operating motor vehicle with insufficient brakes, fined $5 and costs following conviction in municipal court today. His automobile was involved in a collision with another vehicle driven by Nina L. Nase, 524 West Townview circle, on Lexington avenue.

H. S. Hall, no address given by police, driving an automobile with licenses issued to another vehicle, fined $50 with $45 suspended in municipal court today.

C. F. Poindexter, Medina, careless and reckless driving, on Park avenue east, this morning, fined $10 and costs.

Traffic deaths over the state included those of Joseph Walker, 22, at Hamilton; K. E. Spurlock, 29, at Waverly; John Arnold, 16, and John Riles, 18, at Columbia; Wendell Jackson, 20, near Chillicothe; Joseph McNay, 33, near Cincinnati.

Benjamin Repko, 19, of Lorain, was killed and three companions had narrow escapes from death when their auto plunged over a 50-foot embankment into Lake Erie at Ceylon Junction, 19 miles west of Lorain.

At Elyria, Thomas Bauer, six-year-old son of Robert F. Bauer, athletic director of Elyria high school, was crushed to death when he ran in front of a truck near his home.

A Better Deal for New Car Buyers

The car buying public wanted it . . . car dealers asked for it . . . and General Finance Corporation is the first to give this better, fairer deal — PREFERRED BUYERS PLAN

MOST FOR THE LEAST COST – Up to now, finance sources have not properly recognized the fact that the chance for loss decreases as the down payment on a new car increases. PREFERRED BUYERS PLAN rewards the buyer who makes a larger down payment — by giving him a lower rate. Yet the buyer who makes a small down payment pays no more than the former, lowest cost. Each buyer pays a rate proper for his own case.

The larger the down payment, the less the risk, and the lower the cost to the buyer. This results in substantial savings for all but a comparatively few buyers. See the table of examples for representative savings up to 50% of former costs.

Everything in ONE "Bundle"

No chasing from source of credit to insurance agent to car dealer with PREFERRED BUYERS PLAN. You get the car of your selection, complete insurance protection at established rates for this area, plus lowest cost financing — all handled as one unit, at one time! You know what you are buying — see exactly what you are paying for it.

Generous Attitude

Cost saving is only one of the advantages of PREFERRED BUYERS PLAN. The liberal policies which General Finance Corporation has adopted assure friendly consideration throughout the entire term of your contract.

With a plan so broad, so helpful, so considerate and so economical as PREFERRED BUYERS PLAN, can you afford to buy a car any other way?

General Finance Corporation

FREE CREDIT CARD By sending coupon below, you can arrange for a PREFERRED BUYERS PLAN Credit Card which, when presented to any dealer, entitles you to immediate credit up to two-thirds of the purchase price of any new car. No cost or obligation.

BUYING HOLDS ATTENTION IN ACTIVE MARKET

Mart Influenced by Tameness of Mussolini's Speech; Foreign Stocks Up.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK -- Buyers took hold of the stock market today and lifted prices fractions to around 2 points.

After a fairly active opening, dealings slackened and top marks were reduced in many cases.

A bolstering influence, brokers said, was the fact Mussolini's long-awaited speech Sunday was ahardly as belligerent as had been looked for in some quarters.

Stocks did moderately better in London, Paris and Amsterdam. Bonds were selectively higher and commodities steady.

On the rising side in the share list were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Goodyear, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, American Telephone, Anaconda, Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, Santa Fe and Pennsylvania.

Market followers scanned the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that, while orders in this field had fallen short of expectations during March, enough business is at hand and in prospect to prevent any marked let-down in production immediately.

Despite some unsettlement attributed to foreign developments, a tendency toward expansion in eastern steel markets was noted. This it was believed, reflected partly the government's re-armament program and an increasing amount of small industrial construction projects.

Helpful were estimates in the furniture manufacturing field that new business in February, with the exception of 1937, was the best for that month since 1930.

open if the county board orders a consolidation in the township.

The western half of Bloominggrove township, one of the four districts involved in the proposed redistricting, agreed to send its pupils to Shiloh, but balked at any attempt to transport the pupils southward to the Union district in Franklin and Weller townships.

The original consolidation plan called for a new district to include Butler, Bloominggrove, Weller and Franklin townships with all of the high school pupils attending a centralized school in Franklin township, the center of the area, and the grade pupils transported to two schools in Franklin and Weller townships.

While no major opposition to that plan came from Franklin and Weller townships, voters there twice turned down a proposed bond issue to build a high school to serve the four townships.

URGES COURSE

Pastor Says Schools Should Offer Propaganda Course.

Schools should offer courses in propaganda analysis Rev. Paul Hollingshead, pastor of Central Methodist Episcopal church, said in addressing the Community Christian Youth Forum yesterday on the subject "Who Makes Up Your Mind?"

"Not all propaganda is bad but people must be able to analyze it thoughtfully. Our schools should have courses in propaganda analysis as one of the elective courses," the pastor said.

Young people must determine either upon having freedom of thought or freedom from thought, the latter of which involves them in the process of thinking and acting upon what the propagandist believes."

Gladys Keer and Janet Baughman were the devotional leaders at yesterday's Forum.

Dr. W. E. Wygant will lead a discussion on the subject "Narcotics" at next Sunday's meeting at First Presbyterian church, it was announced.

PROPOSES TRADE

Litchfield Suggests Exchange of Cotton for Rubber.

AKRON—(AP)—President P. W. Litchfield of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company proposed today that the United States enter into negotiations with Great Britain and Holland offering the exchange of surplus American cotton for an emergency supply of crude rubber.

Asserting the nation's source of rubber supply lies "half way around the world" Litchfield told Goodyear's annual stockholders' meeting that shipping would be disorganized in the event of a major war. The present national supply represents scarcely more than five months consumption, he said, hence the effect of ship scarcity would be immediately transmitted to the rubber, automobile, power and light and many other industries.

The government now holds more than 11,000,000 bales of cotton, the rubber manufacturer added, which it has purchased or accepted as collateral for loans to cotton producers.

A Cinnamon Roll Causes a Tiff

Grumpy and Snippy were acting just like their names when the News-Journal cameraman caught them at the Donald L. Remy home, 644 South Main street. A moment before they had been eating out of the same pan but a fresh cinnamon roll proved the fly in the ointment. Grumpy, who is being held by Ronnie Remy, 5, (right,) grabbed the roll in his two shall paws and refused to share it with Snippy who is being held by Billy Steel, 4. With a phooey-to-you attitude, Snippy turned his back on his woodchuck pal.

* * * * *

THIS GROUNDHOG KNOWS HOME--HE'S BACK AFTER LONG SNOOZE

Grumpy loves fresh cinnamon buns and graham crackers. He likes to be held and have his pointed little head scratched; he dotes on bread and milk and after a big meal he likes to crawl under the bed and snooze and snooze.

No, Grumpy isn't a pup nor a cat. He's a waddling groundhog who is deaf to the "call of the wild," and who just came back to the bosom of his family after a four-month sleep in a subterranean home.

Grumpy, with three brothers and sisters, was picked up late last summer in the fields just south of the city corporation lines, and even before his bright, inquisitive eyes were opened he had been taken into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald L Remy, 644 South Main street, while the other baby woodchucks were adopted elsewhere in the neighborhood.

He was "fetched up" by hand, with Snippy, the Remy's big house cat, as a playmate Grumpy developed perfect house manners and all of the habits of a well trained pup. When he wants in or out of the house, he scratches on the door, standing up on his tiny hind feet. And he can open the garage door himself.

He and Snippy romped and played in the yard and ate out of the same pan And then came the winter and Grumpy got sleepier and sleepier They couldn't keep him awake long enough to eat.

Early in December he "came up missing" and the Remys thought he had heard the call of the wild and returned to his own kind, as had his brothers and sisters. That was four months ago.

The other day he emerged from his winter quarters, which were discovered not far from the house, and came waddling across the field and yard. The youngsters picked him up and petted him and Grumpy sniffed happily at their ears and noses. And that night he and Snippy ate their supper out of the same pan.

There is just one thing that irritates Grumpy. He hates to be forcibly detained. In fact on the two occasions that he was penned up in the last few days he ate a hole in the floor and a large hunk of plastering out of the rafters. He works particularly fast on plastering.

Grumpy is only about seven months old and the Remy's are wondering if he will return to his inherited habits as he grows older.

THE MANSFIELD NEWS AND MANSFIELD JOURNAL

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

The Mansfield News Founded by W. S. Cappeller, March 7, 1885.

Office: Fourth and Walnut, Mansfield, Ohio Phone Canal 4251.

Entered at Postoffice at Mansfield, Ohio, as second-class mail matter.

MONDAY, MARCH 27, 1939.

As usual, no attention is being paid to the losers in the Irish sweepstakes.

Word comes that the Chinese are preparing for a "surprise offensive" on April 1—and that should be a good day for it.

A recent survey discloses that many pedestrians use the wrong side of the highway—but the same can be said of some motorists.

Fireworks Lobby Prevents Action.

THE Ohio legislature seems again inclined to disregard widely expressed public sentiment in favor of statewide safe and sane Fourth of July celebrations.

While the business of making and selling fireworks and other explosives for Fourth of July use has been materially reduced by ordinances in many cities, there is still enough money in it to justify maintaining an active lobby against a state law which would require that fireworks be confined to public exhibitions and handled only by experienced persons.

A fault with present conditions is that city ordinances apply only within corporation limits, so that roadside stands can be set up just outside of cities and fireworks sold to adults and children, without regard for the damage that may result.

It is regrettable that more children must lose their lives, suffer loss of sight, or be permanently crippled, before the state legislature can be brought to realize that public interest is of greater importance than fireworks profits.

Warden's Job Is Difficult.

DISMISSAL of James C. Woodard, as warden of the state penitentiary at Columbus, can accomplish little more than a temporary "new broom" clean-up of intolerable conditions in this ancient prison.

The fault at Ohio penitentiary lies deeper than mere change of supervisory personnel. It lies in the fact that this hundred-year-old penal institution has outlived its usefulness for anything other than long-time segregation of hardened criminals and the execution of death sentences.

It may be doubted if Warden Woodard, or any other man, is equal to the task of maintaining discipline and properly operating a prison in which more than four thousand law violators of all classes are crowded into space intended for less than half that number.

What is really needed in Ohio is a thorough revamping of the penal housing program, with classification of convicted law violators in the various groups in which they rightly belong, and suitable facilities provided for their temporary or permanent segregation.

Horse-and-Buggy Speller Wins.

WHEN John F. Kramer, veteran Mansfield lawyer, won the Baku Grotto spelling match the other evening, there was no reason to feel surprised.

John learned to spell back in the "horse-and-buggy" days, when spelling was regarded as an essential of schooling and when fundamentals were considered necessary to so-called "education."

Under present "visual" methods of teaching reading in the lower grades, without emphasis on the arrangement of letters required for correct spelling, it is not difficult to understand how some children are graduated from high school and enter college without being able to correctly spell commonly used 5- or 6-letter words.

It is unfair to these children that such should be the case, for they are not infrequently placed at a serious disadvantage in writing a letter of application for employment, or in holding a job after they get it, and are also subject to much later embarrassment and a constant handicap to advancement.

A workable knowledge of spelling does not involve requirement of ability to spell a large number of technical, unusual, obsolete, or "trick" words, such as are found in some of the old spelling books, but it does mean that children in grade and high schools should acquire a gradually increasing vocabulary of commonly used words—and that they should learn the meaning and correct spelling of each of these.

The explanation given for neglect of spelling in Mansfield public schools is that the curriculum is too full to allow adequate time for this subject. A school curriculum that does not provide time for essentials might well be checked up with a view to disclosing and eliminating some possible non-essentials.

Rapidly Changing Maps.

MAP-MAKERS, meaning cartographers, not dictators, have plenty to do these days. An inquisitive reporter who visited the workrooms of an American map-making company found draftsmen at work on maps of Europe still incorporating changes created at Munich last September.

Such work isn't wasted. People are as interested in maps showing the world before a major change as they are in those that follow it. In order to study the changes themselves both maps are necessary, and in order to study history it is necessary to have maps of different periods and dates back through the years.

It will be a fine day for the troubled peoples of Europe when that continent's map is labeled "United States of Europe." Today that development seems remote, indeed, but a study of maps of the past—including our own—suggest it isn't impossible.

Laying Glass Bricks.

THE new building materials and methods are wonderful, but they are beginning to make trouble for builders in various ways. An example occurs in Racine, Wis., in the erection of a windowless office building. The idea about such a building is that windows are ineffective and that it is easier to take care of light and ventilation in other ways.

The light is provided in this case mainly by use of glass bricks, which let daylight in without letting the people inside see out. And that, too, looked like a good idea until building trades trouble developed.

The bricklayers started cementing in the glass bricks, and then the glaziers protested. Glass, they maintain, is glaziers' work. The bricklayers insist that by the same token, bricks are bricklayers' work, no matter what they are made of. And there the controversy stands.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—Not in many a year has quite such an extraordinary character as Bill Douglas been placed on the supreme court.

He has the bearing of a first sergeant, the vocabularly of a Boccacio and an apt choice of words that likely will make his written opinions choice tidbits for legal epicures.

Wm. O. Douglas

He will regale a stag party with the raciest tales extant in Washington and within an hour be prepared to deliver as exacting a piece of legal argument as could be wished.

When a man has arrived at a goal it is mere trace work to pick up evidence he dropped by the way to show where he was going. Such was the case with Douglas. Undoubtedly he has known for several months that the president has been looking him over as a possible court appointee. With the "finger of destiny" pointing at him he has become perhaps more philosophic in his speeches than earlier.

Thus he has merged humanistic philosophy with corporate doctrine in several recent talks. In January he spoke before the Fort Worth, Tex., Clearing House association, deploring the inactivity of directors. As a class, he said, they don't know much about the corporations they supposedly direct.

"We are a capitalistic economy," he said, entwining a new thread of thought into his talk, "and only so long as we remain a capitalistic economy will we remain a democracy. Capitalism and democracy are Siamese twins they cannot live if separated. The most serious body blows to capitalism do not, as some would have us think, come in the form of legislation. They come in scandalous mismanagement and reckless disregard of the ancient principles of trusteeship."

Doesn't Like Bigness.

THAT he shares some of former Justice Brandeis' dislike of "bigness" in corporate structures may be deduced from a speech in February before the Fordham University Alumni association.

"One aspect of modern life which has gone far to stifle men is the rapid growth of tremendous corporations. Enormous spiritual sacrifices are made in the transformation of shopkeepers into employes. . . . The disappearance of free enterprise has led to a submergence of the individual in the impersonal corporation in much the same manner as he has been submerged in the state in other lands."

Knows Corporate Wrinkles.

DOUBTLESS Douglas' principal contribution to the court will be his thorough knowledge of corporate organization.

Although once he was an attorney in a firm with a big corporate practice, he never has looked like anything bred of a corporation. He couldn't dress the part if he tried. And he never has tried.

His reform zone has been in corporate and exchange practice. To a great extent that has kept his name from the more controversial headlines on page one and placed it back with the brokerage wrangles on the financial pages. The reading public there is limited, so he is perhaps the least known outside of Washigton of any top-flight New Dealer.

But he is as tough-minded as any member of the crew.

Million Motorists Ran Out of Gas

Soon several million motorists will be off on automobile tours. But not all will have the good time they expect. Headaches, backaches, and grief await many of them. Yet Paul W. Kearney, in the current Rotarian magazine, indicates that thees annoyances can be cut to a minimum by heeding a few commonsense rules. Here is a condensed list of his do's and don't's for motorists:

1. Eat lightly while on a tour. Heaving eating causes drowsiness.

2. Stop now and then for a rest. Play catch or hang by your hands from a tree limb.

3. Take an emergency can of gasoline. One and a half million motorists ran out of gas last year.

4. Avoid excessive fatigue. If you must drive when fagged out, reduce speed and use extra caution.

5. Take along duplicate car keys, but let someone besides the driver carry them.

6. Carry a tire gauge. When driving on a hot day, check tire pressures.

7. Have a block of wood suitable to use under your jack on soft ground.

Taking the Profits Out of War

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—With fifty senators pledged to the proposed bill to take the profits out of war, it would seem that nothing could stop its enactment. Yet the probability is that it will be stopped, if not in the Senate, then in the House. The proposal has had a strange history, often making apparent progress, but always falling by the wayside in some unexpected manner.

The answer is simple. Most of the congressmen backing the measure, or supporting it, do not want it to pass. There are a very few sincere senators and representatives who believe that it would be a good thing, but most of them know that actually it would do little to prevent the country getting into war, and its presence on the statute books during the period immediately preceding our entry into war would be little short of a catastrophe.

Let us assume that the bill became law, as the present demonstration of strength among senators would indicate that it readily might. From the day war was declared, any corporation which made any profits from supplying war materials to the government would be taxed virtually 100 per cent of those profits. So there would be no selfish reason for any manufacturer to desire to get the country into war.

That is the real object of the legislation. Its backers want to stop the machinations by which munitions makers involve the world in suffering, destruction and death just in order to make their own profits. The public is very well sold on this idea. There have been lots of plays, movies and propaganda putting it over. There has never been anything approaching a sane consideration of the question.

BUT now let us assume that the steel makers of this country clearly see that the United States is bound to be involved in a major war. Under normal circumstances every one of them, with the War and Navy Department experts prodding them at every turn, would begin getting ready. Before war was declared, unless it came with terrific suddenness, their plants would be ready to start turning out munitions and guns of the precise type needed by the army and navy.

As a matter of fact, the United States navy made a very good showing in the World war, while Franklin D. Roosevelt was assistant secretary, because Sam McGowan, the paymaster general of the navy, got away with murder in placing orders BEFORE the war declaration. That is why the navy was fixed so much better than the army, and why it was so much less criticized.

But under the proposed law any steel manufacturer who spent a penny on the chance that the United States might get into the war would be a traitor to his stockholders, even if he had shown a patriotic spirit.

Why? Because there would not be a chance of his making any money for his stockholders, and there would be the cold certainty that, in addition to NOT making any money during the war period, he would run into severe losses immediately AFTER the war period.

THE history of every munitions-making enterprise in private hands has been that it made big profits DURING the war, and then took terrific losses AFTER the war, what with cancelled orders, unused inventories, and unneeded expansions of plant. So they just wouldn't.

Answer: Government monopoly of the munitions manufacturing business if the law passes. And the army and navy don't like that. They fear Congress would never be liberal enough in advance to have the nation properly prepared.

Health Advice

Marking of Baby Popular Fallacy.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WE HAVE had a stream of books lately about doctors and their lives. It has remained for a California doctor, who took the specialty of obstetrics and gynecology, to write one of the most interesting, to-wit: Consultation Room, by Frederic Loomis, M. D. (Alfred A. Knopf, New York).

The doctor is a born story teller and has had a wonderful series of experiences.

He explains the different popular fallacies, such as the marking of babies. "It is as futile to attempt to explain a birthmark or argue about it with many of the older generation, and not a few of the younger, as it always has been to argue about religion. In fact, religion and the weight of Biblical authority often enter into the discussion of this question. The story in Genesis of Jacob's striped kine is quoted as conclusive.

Can't Be Sure.

"No one is any longer quite secure in saying that anything can't be done, but we know of no possible mechanism by which an impression received by an expectant mother through any of her five senses can be conveyed to or reproduced in her baby. There is no nervous connection between the two, and the mother's blood, contrary to general belief, never enters the baby's body nor in normal conditions even touches it. The mother's blood and that of her baby are totally different in appearance under the miscroscope and neither could survive with the blood of the other.

"The usual and probably correct explanation of a fancied connection between a birthmark and an incident in the mother's life while she was carrying her baby is that it is a coincidence only.

"Holy Babies."

"There are many stories of deliberate attempts to mark babies, especially in the days of religious ferver, and women are said to have had the sign of the cross burned on their bodies so that they might have 'holy babies' so marked. But there is no record so far as I know that anyone ever succeeded."

Then there is the story of the expert witness in court who recognized that the microscopic section of a lung was that of a woman because it was invaded by a curious tumor peculiar only to women. That makes a very good story.

Another piece of advice in the chapter called "The Problems of Middle Life": "It is easy to understand why a woman's peace of mind is disturbed in middle age. Two melancholy specters confront her—and fear of cancer and bewilderment over the physiological changes which she feels, both in her body and in her mind. She should know that not only can she be comforted and helped, but in most instances both of these conditions can actually be cured if her doctor is given the opportunity. He cannot do it if he does not see her."

Great Achievements.

In addition to handing the nation its biggest debt, the New Deal also has presented it with the longest depression on record. Both great achievements, if you like that sort of thing.—Detroit Free Press.

Young America Finds the Answer.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THEY are—to use their own description—"a slap-happy, care-free bunch of kids." You can see their like in any country district . . . banging around in busted junk heaps . . . whooping it up at the local Dew Drop Inn . . . raising Cain generally.

You've seen their Old Folks, too; shaking their heads ...recalling "the chores we usta do at their age"...prophesying that "them young hoodlums ain't a-coming to no good end." And all too often those croakings come true. That unrestrained young energy, that aimless idling, and the glamorous cock-eyed dreams that idling begets...many a girl finds quick disillusionment ...many a boy goes crooked, swapping tall tales at some "joint."

UNEMPLOYED YOUTH AT THE CROSSROADS...WHERE DO THEY GO FROM THERE? A worried nation wonders, yet finds no answer. But near Mansfield, Ohio, the kids have found the answer for themselves! Nineteen-year-old Alberta Lawes tells the world about it.

"We were just a bunch of country kids but we got sick of people knocking us, saying we hadn't any serious interests. So we formed a club to study the CO-OPERATIVE MOVEMENT. That isn't as uninteresting as it sounds. Farming folks, everywhere, are realizing that they've got to co-operate if they want to get anywhere. So we wanted to know how co-operation worked and what our place was in it. And the kids sure went for it!

"There were ten of us at first; now there are fifty. There's fun, of course, but we're plenty serious, too. We study everything—from the European situation to Successful Marriage. Sometimes we debate...but whatever the program, WE ALWAYS TRY TO SEE WHAT IS OUR DUTY AS YOUNG AMERICANS.

"We create our own entertainment, which consists of good, clean, old-fashioned quadrilles and folk dances. Out of this fun-loving group we have found talented people to form an orchestra. We have also formed a dramatic club which is soon to present a play."

Some letter! Yet you still believe America is going to the dogs? Then shame on you! Here's proof that the good old Spirit of Democracy is still going high, wide and handsome! AND IF THE OLD GLOOMS CAN'T SAVE US, IT'S A CINCH THAT THE YOUNG ENTHUSIASTS W-I-L-L! So—give the kids a hand! Send young Alberta a letter to read to all the Gang! Say that you're grateful...admit that you're hopeful...TELL THEM THEY'RE TOPS!

Timely Editorial

Chicken Psychology.

Advance of science is invading many interesting fields. Now who would have expected the experimenters to try their skill at chicken psychology? Yet an article in Country Gentleman relates seriously that such studies are conducted at the experimental farm of the Bureau of Animal Industry in Beltsville, Maryland.

Already proof exists that the mental condition of hens affects their egg-laying capacity and their conduct in mothering chicks. Influenced by skillful scientific suggestion, Papa Rooster can be persuaded to help in bringing up the baby chicks, the article says. The poultry family is found to thrive best if protected against sudden mental shock. "It pays to knock gently on the door of the pen," the writer says, "before entering the coop."

Experiments may be conducted with soothing music. If the radio is used, we suggest an automatic cut-out which will spare the chickens the shock of news from Europe.—Detroit News.

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

You Leave Your Smile.

You smile and happiness
That comes to me
Stays on long afterward.
In dreams I see

Again that cheerful thing.
A smile is brief.
But lasting, lingering.
In high relief

Your smiling face comes back
For dear delight.
And many times recalled
Makes dark hours bright.

A Farmer's Diary

Five Little Rabbits.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

IN the relic of an orchard, where once a dwelling stood, the tufts of matted grass are the longest and thickest I have ever seen. Beneath a fallen trunk I saw what seemed more than a natural tuft; the long blades of withered grass had formed a spacious swirl. I looked for an opening, and found it on the southern side.

Small bunches of rabbit's fur smoothly lined the edges of the opening, and as far as I could see inside. The prostrate trunk served as a splendid roof. I got down on my hands and knees and peered. Five little squirming rabbits, perhaps two days old, were in the furry cradle. When I put one finger near, they nuzzled it full length, with cold little noses, in search of food and warmth.

Their thin little bodies were blue with cold, and they were crawling slowly over one another, shivering all the time. I watched them for a little, then pulled the soft furry mat up closer about the quivering babies, and walked farther on, through my neighbor's field along the creek.

At the edge of the woods, I heard the quick rattle of a chain among the leaves. I knew some boy had set a steel trap and some unsuspecting wild creature had found it. At the edge of a little pool I found a stake and the end of the chain attached. Beneath the bank of fleshy roots I saw the cruel jaws clamped upon the rear leg of a rabbit. The skin and flesh were torn from the bone, by the creature's struggles.

I quickly grabbed the panting bunny and bore down with my foot upon the trap to release the jaws. The frightened animal screamed as I had never heard a rabbit do before. I thought it might be the mother of the starving little ones, and carried it some distance toward the nest before I left the suffering creature down and concealed myself to watch.

The northwest wind blew strong and cold. I shivered in my warm coats as I stood, but I did not see the crippled mother approach the little hutch beneath the log. Next morning early I visited the spot, but did not find a trace of what had been, the night before, a cozy natural little home.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The drive behind the composition of something in art isn't always inspiration, or a friendly muse. It may very well be the relentless insistence of a friend, as in the case of Peter De Rose, who probably wouldn't have got around to writing what now is the most popular song hit in America if Paul Whiteman hadn't hounded him and annoyed him with calls until, finally, he sat down and wrote "Deep Purple."

There were four or five little bars that De Rose had been rippling off as a piano signature on his early morning NBC broadcasts with May Singhi Breen. There wasn't any more, just a vagrant keyboard ripple that De Rose had happened onto and had been using for years.

But Whiteman didn't know this. "What's that from?" he asked DeRose. "I hear it every morning. A thing as pretty as that should be played in full."

WHEN the composer explained that it wasn't really a song, that it was just a finger exercise, a way of saying good-morning on the air, Whiteman said, "I want that in my next concert. Write it, will you? Work it out and let me have it. It's beautiful."

"Well," said De Rose, "Okay." But he didn't. And as the concert grew closer Whiteman's calls became more insistent. As a matter of record, "Deep Purple" missed the concert—it wasn't written in time, and Whiteman went on without it. But he never ceased urging De Rose to complete it.

One night in 1934 De Rose called Whiteman and said, "I think I've got it. If you're going to be there I'll run over and play it for you."

This is what he did, and Whiteman immediately had an arrangement made of it, a symphonic arrangement requiring perhaps five minutes to play. There are two definite themes in the piece. Then Whiteman introduced "Deep Purple" and made a recording of it.

So "Deep Purple" became a semi-classic with concert artists who like to play around with pieces removed from the popular variety. Pianists liked it, and it was used in production numbers of Broadway shows.

ONE day Guy Lombardo got an arrangement of it and played it. Immediately he was pestered for lyrics. People wanted to hear it sung. There weren't any lyrics. It wasn't that kind of song. So Lombardo began doing a little hounding of his own—hounding Jack Robbins, the publisher, for a set of lyrics. Finally Robbins called in Mitchell Parish, who wrote the lyrics to "Star Dust" and "Stars Fell on Alabama," and two days later Parish came back with the words practically everybody is singing today . . . "When the deep purple falls over sleepy garden walls, and the stars begin to flicker in the sky, etc."

Now it is almost impossible to dial into a station or walk into a supper club without hearing it. Copies and records have been selling in the hundreds of thousands, and, of course, De Rose, who has published more than 200 songs, has another hit on his hands.

He wears those things well. He is a quiet, very sincere, friendly person, soft-spoken, well but not ostentatiously dressed, and he is a good host. He is married to May Singhi Breen, with whom (as "sweethearts of the air") he has been on NBC since 1923. They live in a roof-terrace apartment, a vast one, on top of a 73rd street hotel and the rooms are thick-carpeted and filled with flowers and pictures and countless gadgets of a sentimental as well as monetary value.

CONVICT'S DAUGHTER + + +

By RUTH RAY KANE

(Copyright, 1939.)

CHAPTER 20

The man called Jack Price had checked out. So the clerk told Lona the second time she called at the hotel hoping to see him. Just five minutes ago. No, he hadn't said where he was going. To the railroad station, probably. Leaving town. The eyes the clerk bent on Lona were faintly scornful as if he resented her curiosity about one of his guests.

Lona smiled to herself as she went back out on the street for the second time that morning, and headed for the city market to pick up her groceries for the day. Fate must be taking care of her, she thought, gratefully. If she had actually talked with the fellow perhaps he wouldn't have gone away. As it was, she had been worrying about nothing. She was glad she hadn't bothered Jim about it, she thought, as she prolonged the momentous decision between steak with mushrooms, or chops with dressing, just for the pure enjoyment she got from wavering.

She decided, finally, on the chops, and went on up Main street feeling very housewifely and conscious of the package under her arm.

She had no presentment of what was to come as she set the dinner table that evening in readiness for Jim's return from work. Looking back later, she wondered how she could possibly have been so happy, so unbelievably happy.

The chops were neatly breaded, waiting to be popped into the pan, and she was arranging a bunch of velvety red asters from the Morris garden in a round blue bowl for the table center piece, when the creak of Dinah's chair sounded in the hall outside.

"Busy?" the girl sang out, and there was an odd hesitancy in her voice. She smiled almost apologetically as Lona helped her through the door and into the room.

"There's something I—ought to tell you," she began, evidently embarrassed. "I don't want you to think I'm prying into your affairs, but there was a—a man here a few minutes ago. He was asking about you."

"A man! Asking about me?" Lona's heart sank. "Was he—was he a reporter?" she brought out.

"A reporter?" Dinah sounded surprised. "I don't think so. He was hunting a man by the name of Rankin. He seemed to think that might be Jim's name."

"Rankin?" Lona shook her head. "I've never heard that name. What made him think that Jim—" She broke off, her eyes searching the bright face before her. "Did he have a picture cut from a newspaper?" she asked, tensely.

Dinah nodded. "It looked like Jim, too, Lona," she admitted, unhappily. "I told him your name was Bennett and that—that I was sure it wasn't Jim in the picture. It looked a lot younger than Jim."

"Younger?" Relief took hold of Lona. "Oh, then it couldn't have been Jim. It's some mistake. The only picture I know of was taken lately. When we were married, and I was in it, too."

"But it was Jim, Lona!" Dinah looked troubled. "I could have sworn it. And the man was a detective!"

"A detective?"

"Yes. He left this card. He said he was going to the bridge to get a look at Jim when he leaves work. He's been called back to Chicago, he said, but he wants to see Jim before he leaves. He wouldn't say why he was looking for this—Rankin man."

* * *

For a moment Lona stared down at the piece of cardboard Dinah had thrust into her hand. "Jack Price, Western Detective Agency," it read, and a feeling that something had gone wrong possessed her. Something besides her own fear of reporters. A detective! No newspaper hunting copy would work through a detective agency. Could it be that Jim—after all, she knew so little about him. Conscious of Dinah's eyes following her every move, she put the card into her apron pocket nonchalantly.

"Thanks for telling me, Dinah," she brought out, and removing her apron, casually reached for her coat. "It's nothing to get hot and bothered about. Just some mistake in identity."

She smiled as she pulled her hat down over her curls. "I have forgotten the cream for the salad," she told Dinah, lightly. "Would you mind waiting while I run down to the corner grocery? Jim hates salad dressing without whipped cream. I'll only be a minute."

"I have my own supper to get," Dinah reminded her, turning her chair with expert hands. "I must be going. I just thought I'd run over and tell you about—that man. He—I didn't like him, Lona. He asked so many questions, about where you came from, and about Jim's work."

"Don't let it worry you," Lona reassured her again. "It's quite an adventure, really. Imagine a real live detective in your own parlor! Wish I'd been here." She managed to laugh as she lifted the clicking chair over the Morriss threshold, and Dinah laughed, too.

"He didn't look much like a detective," she complained. "He wasn't fat and he didn't chew a cigar. He was a disappointment." She laughed again, and her spirits seemed restored.

Once outside the house, away from the probing of the shining blue eyes, Lona's smile died quickly, and she set off downtown almost at a run. It had come to her as she held that card in her hand and listened to Dinah's stumbling account of the man's visit, that Jim ought to be warned. Why, she did not know. Surely there must be some mistake, she told herself, as she went down through town toward the bridge where Jim and the rest of his crew were waiting for the closing whistle. The man couldn't be hunting for Jim. It was someone else; someone who resembled him. That often happened. And yet . . .

Her feet quickened of their own accord as she followed her shadow down toward the river which lay broad and glistening in the late afternoon sun. She had not yet been down to the bridge when Jim was working, and as she came within sight of the towering span she wondered how she was to find him and keep him out of sight of the prying eyes that even now might be watching.

THEATERS

WARNER BROTHERS managers of Mansfield returned from Cleveland the latter part of the week, after seeing a number of new films previewed, convinced that Bette Davis' role in "Dark Victory" is one of the finest pieces of work ever done on the screen. Which merely coroborates the verdict of Pacific coast reviewers, but it's a tear-jerker of the most potent type—the kind that sneaks upon the stern males of the audience as well as the women.

Launches New Series.

There are a lot of ups and downs, frowns and smiles in "My Wife's Relatives" when the merry Higgins family gets fired from jobs, one by one, sets up its own business on a shoe string, tells off the town's richest family, and finally emerges fairly victorious. This new series of pictures has the Gleason family of the screen—James, Lucile and Russell—in the leads. It is one of the current attractions at the Park along with "Smashing the Spy Ring."

English Favorite.

"Smiling Along," opening at the Majestic tomorrow for three days, brings Gracie Fields, darling of the English stage and screen. The story concerns the fortunes of a troupe of traveling entertainers who stake their forutnes on an old bus, a clever dog and a world famous musician. Bonita Granville, talented juvenile player, is the star of "Beloved Brat" which also has Dolores Costello and Donald Crisp.

Jabs at Night Society.

Publicity-worshipping debutantes, malicious gossip-columnists, bored socialites and a celebrity-hunting press are all lined up for good natured jabs in "Cafe Society," one of the Madison's features. Madeliene Carroll as a society gal of the top brackets, Fred MacMurray as the newspaperman who teaches her manners and self control, and Shirley Ross as the "other girl" head the capable cast. There is a dramatic climax in "King of Chinatown" when the ruler of a gambling empire finds his chances of life and death in the hands of his enemy's daughter. Anna May Wong and Akim Tamiroff in the leads.

Famous Poem Filmed.

The development of a humble Indian water carrier into a gallant fighting man who makes the supreme sacrifice for his comrades is pictured in the film version of Kipling's "Gunga Din." An exceptionally good cast is headed by Victor McLaglen, Cary Grant and Douglas Fairbanks, jr., and the rattle of English muskets and glitter of bayonets runs through this picture at the Ohio. When a gentle old aristocrat finds that she is helping pay the rackets that prey on the dry cleaning business, she promptly decides to bust the gang and imports her own gang of racketeers to do the dirty work in "The Lady and the Mob," the other half of the double bill.

Aid to Romance.

Adapted from the Katherine Brush magazine story, "Listen Darling" is the attempt of two members of the younger generation—Judy Garland and Freddie Bartholomew—to set Mary Astor's feet on the right road to love. Miss Astor plays the mother of one and plans to marry the wrong man in order to solve her financial difficulties. Walter Pidgeon, Alan Hale and Gene Lockhart are supporting players. "The Valley of the Giants," an outdoor romance laid in the redwood country, is the second feature at the Ritz.

Chesterfield
...the blend that can't be copied
...the RIGHT COMBINATION of the world's best cigarette tobaccos
Copyright 1939, Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

SIX STEPS TO MORE SMOKING PLEASURE

AGEING—Chesterfield's mild ripe tobaccos, like fine wines, are aged for two or more years in huge wooden casks. Here they gradually acquire that true Chesterfield mildness and better taste which give millions of smokers more pleasure.

STEMMING—"Almost human" is what they say about the interesting stemming machines, whose fingers pick up the tobacco, leaf by leaf and take out the stem, leaving only the mild, tender, good-tasting part of the leaf to go into the making of Chesterfields.

BLENDING—There is only one Chesterfield blend . . . the blend that can't be copied . . . a happy combination of the world's best American and Turkish tobaccos. Just the right proportions to make Chesterfield a milder, better-tasting cigarette.

PAPER—Every Chesterfield you smoke is wrapped in pure cigarette paper... the finest cigarette paper made. That's another reason why Chesterfields are milder and better-tasting.

MAKING—Almost faster than the eye can follow, Chesterfields come rolling out of the marvelous cigarette making machines. Chesterfields are always round, firm and well-filled.

PACKAGING—Truly amazing are the packaging machines which wrap and seal Chesterfields in their air-tight, moisture-proof packages. Regardless of where you buy them, Chesterfields reach you as fresh as the day they were made.

Informally Speaking...

Monday, March 27.

Lucy, dear:

Well, we did have spring—almost summer—for a couple days this past week, but winter is back among those present today with rain and freezing temperatures again.

* * *

AND in spite of the fact that we like to think spring is really here, some Mansfield residents are still taking vacations to warmer climes. . . . Mrs. George H. Anson and her daughter, Shirley, are in Boston, Mass., now, making preparations for a month's sojourn to the West Indies—they're embarking in the very near future.

* * *

It's always interesting to hear news from Mansfield college students, isn't it? Just heard from Mary Gage (who's a member of the freshman class at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor this year) that she was recently initiated into Gamma Phi Beta, national social sorority.

* * *

No doubt you've heard of Richard Olin's recent engagement to Jean Gifford of Cleveland by this time, Lucy . . . but now I have some more news concerning Dick for you. . . . He will play the part of Leader of the Citizen's in William Shakespeare's "Coriolanus," to be presented at Kenyon college this Wednesday (Dick's a senior there this semester, you know). He is also assistant director of the play, his work being to manage all the mobs. . . . In fact, Dick has been a leader in the technical end of dramatics for his four years at Kenyon—and is a member of the Hill Players (a small group of students who are most active in dramatics at the college).

* * *

Did you notice in the Cleveland Press the other day that Amy Carpenter Douglas (a former Mansfield resident who lives in Cleveland now) has just returned from New York City—where she was learning to make gloves. . . . Mrs. Douglas wears only hand-made gloves . . . so now she should be most happy in the fact that she can make all her own.

* * *

HELEN HOSLER is pretty excited these days—anxiously awaiting the arrival of April 23 . . . for it's then she's leaving to go to New York City, where she'll work at the Westinghouse exhibit in the World's Fair. . . . Helen has a leave from her job in the Mansfield relief office and has been in the Westinghouse instruction school since the middle of March. . . . She and three other girls will serve as hostesses at the exhibit and demonstrate the appliances on display. Helen (Mrs. Edward) Norris is another Mansfielder who's going down with Miss Hosler—and they'll be gone for six or seven months.

* * *

Several Mansfield residents have just returned from combination business and pleasure trips so to speak. . . . Helen Hartman (who's the supervisor of music in the public schools here) was in Detroit attending the North Central Music contest last week. . . . And Kit Rhoades was in Waterloo, Ia., recently as a representative of the Westinghouse at a company sales meeting there.

* * *

YOU probably recall Helen Allyn (feature writer on the Cleveland Press) who exchanged jobs with Jane Williams of The News-Journal staff for a week last spring . She has a column in the Press every Saturday now. It's titled "After Thoughts" and is written about various things and persons of interest in and about Cleveland.

* * *

Now it's your turn to send me the latest news, Lucy, and in the meantime we'll hope that spring returns for a permanent showing soon.

Lovingly,

Marianne
